Dear Hiring Committee:

I would like to highly recommend Jennifer Warner for your science writing or science communication positions.

Jen was a standout student in my Science Writing and Communication class at Penn State, a course that is designed to train writers to convey highly technical and scientific information in clear, compelling and convincing ways. From science news briefs to science news stories to science feature stories, Jen's work was consistently among the class's best.

I was also impressed with Jen's work ethic and commitment to deliver scientific information that non-technical people both want to read and can easily understand.

I am always willing to talk more about Jen's qualifications.

Sincerely,

Matthew L Swayne
